The Core Story of Brain Development: Learning, Growing, and Developing in Uncertain Times

Kristy McConnell, R. Psych., Certified Brain Story Change Agent

Even though it feels like the world has come to a strange stand still, children's brains are still learning, growing, and developing. This session will provide information on brain development and how early life experiences, including COVID 19, are stored into a child's brain and body.

The session will explore how brain architecture is established early in life and supports life-long learning, behaviour, and health.
