Children and Parenting after Separation

CES 3-part series

Session 3

Developing Parenting Plans

John-Paul Boyd, QC

Member of the Law Societies of Alberta & British Columbia

Parenting plans are agreements, court orders and arbitrator awards that set out the rules for how separated parents will care for their children and share their children's time. This webinar will talk about how separated parents can work together to develop parenting plans that are good for children. We'll talk about parenting plans for parents in both high and low levels of conflict. Important things to include in parenting plans and considerations that will minimize children's exposure to their parents' conflict.
