Trauma Informed Teaching:

What parents and teachers should know

Ocean Matyjanka, Brittany Postill & Claire McGuinness
School and Applied Child Psychology, University of Calgary

Summary/Objectives:

1. Understand what trauma is and how it can be recognized.
2. Inform parents and educators about the stages and guiding principles of trauma-informed practice.
3. Learn about specific evidence-based resources to help students, families, and school personnel build the foundation for resilience in children who have experienced trauma.
