Improving emotional health and well being

Birth Control and Sexually Transmitted Infections (STI) What do you need to know?

Christine Sturgeon, B.Ed., Child Development Supervisor (Level III)
Education Coordinator, Sexual and Reproductive Health
Alberta Health Services

Are you a trusted adult to a teen but are worried that your knowledge about birth control and STI might be out of date? Youth make healthier sexual choices when they can talk to an adult they trust about these topics. In this session for parents and professionals, build your ability to support youth by learning about:

- Creating a safer space to talk with teens about birth control and STI
- Current birth control methods that are effective for teens, how they work and how teens can get them
- Sexually transmitted infections – what they are, how people get them, how to lower risk and where teens can get testing and treatment
